Your connection to the Grady Life

Grady-White owner, Malcolm Earle enjoyed a trip up the central British Columbia coast with a few friends. "After being cooped up in the house working from home during the pandemic, we decided it was the perfect time to take a trip."

The Grady Life – How Boating Enhanced Our Lives in 2020

While 2020 forced us all to live quite differently than we ever have before – traveling less, distancing ourselves from others, and cutting back on sporting events and extracurricular activities – one positive thing it taught us was that life is always better on the water, especially on a Grady-White boat! See what our Grady owners were up to last year and be inspired as you plan your next boating escape for 2021.

Father and Son Adventure Hooks Grady-White Fanatic

It all started with a father-son voyage with his dad at age 11. Through many boating activities since then, to a recent excursion with his own son – boating with family has long been a way of life for Glenn Howe. Living in a year-round warm climate in Jacksonville, Florida, means Glenn and his wife, Kathy, and their family, get to use their boat throughout the year. In 2020, they purchased their third Grady-White, providing a little entertainment for a friend that posted on social media, "Glenn just bought his 15,000th boat".
