Gradys Continue to Check All the Boxes

When Ernie Felici set out to purchase his first family boat, he did so with safety and quality at the top of his list. Because their boating enjoyment would include his young children and a tricky inlet, safety logically took the lead. However, through his work and life experiences, he recognized that quality was equally important and played a crucial role in the safety aspect too. Happily, he found a boat that fit the bill on both accounts when he purchased his first Grady-White in the spring of 1998.

A Little Prep Goes a Long Way

For many, the arrival of spring means it's time to get the boat ready for a season of family fun and fishing! In addition to checking your equipment, you should also look for any new regulations that may have been implemented since your last boating season.

Delivering the Best of Both Worlds

Two words are synonymous with Grady-White Boats: rugged and luxurious. Seamlessly blending the two together is what consistently delivers the ultimate boating experience that Grady-White is renowned for. While there are many aspects that enhance a Grady's performance, such as the highly acclaimed SeaV²® hull design, seating is one of the most visible. The variety of approaches that the Grady-White engineering team uses to design seats throughout the boat—that are as durable as they are comfortable—is a testament to their commitment to deliver comfort, longevity, and maximum versatility.
